Nashville Scene

"Austin City Limits" threw a big press party to kick off its 1981 season, featuring video clips from upcoming segments on Lacy J. Dalton, George Jones, Charlie Daniels and Bobby Bare (who also attended the party). The activity took place in mid-December at the Lone Star Cafe in Manhattan, while the season premiere of the weekly country-oriented concert series is slated for the week of Jan. 8.

Scene hears that Kris Kristofferson, unfazed by the premature fatality of Michael Cimino's "Heaven's Gate," is now set to film a new movie titled "Roll Over" with Jane Fonda.

DILLON DEBUT—RCA artist Dean Dillon sings "Nobody in His Right Mind" during his recent debut on the "Grand Ole Opry."

Programmers who've been wondering when Vern Gosdin would resurface can take heart: he's out now with his first Ovation single, "Too Long Gone," produced by Brian Fisher. This puts Gosdin on the same roster with Ovation acts Joe Sun, Jim Rushing, the Kendalls, Sheila Andrews and Max D. Barnes.

And Leona Williams is set for her first Elektra Records release shortly. Williams headlined an Encore Talent "appreciation dinner" not long ago with fellow performers Moe Bandy, Joe Stampley, Reba McEntire and Jeanne Pruett, which took place at San Antonio's Busch Gardens.

Boxcar Willie (not an artist we see too much of yet in this country) was interviewed by WHN-AM for its public affairs radio show, "From A To Z." Boxcar recently received his first English gold album and rumors have it that he may follow in Slim Whitman's footsteps by issuing a special record package on U.S. to boost his standing here among country fans.

Barbara Mandrell's television series on NBC has apparently wonned the top brass, especially when they gilded the strong ratings her hour-long programs drew against "WKRP in Cincinnati." Whether she will accept an extended series deal from the network is not firm yet, but

The country conversion shows no signs of letting up steam in 1981. A Miami Veterans Hospital patient claims that he can hear country music blaring inside his head (doctors believe shrapnel from an old war wound may be acting as the receiver) ... And in a recent issue of "Cosmopolitan" magazine, actor James Garner is quoted as saying that his favorite way of relaxing is "listening to country music."

The Miller Beer folks were so impressed by the concert footage they taped on Eddie Rabbit and his band singing "I Love A Rainy Night" that the company decided to launch Rabbit's television commercials earlier than planned. The spots began airing New Year's Day on the Rose Bowl, and they're also scheduled to run during the AFC/NFC playoff games as well as the Superbowl game.

Singer John Anderson's "plain and simple" brand of country has been featured recently in a number of national publications, including "People," "Village Voice" and "Us." Anderson's become a genuine critics' choice, judging from media interest. Meanwhile, Warner Bros. labelmate Gail Davies celebrated the release of her newest album, "I'll Be There" (also self-produced, as was "The Game") by signing a management deal with John Domanian. Hopefully this will mean more live touring for Gail and her group in the coming months, as well as additional TV work.

Country fans who might have wondered what ever happened to red-haired songstress Katy Moffatt can take heart: she's back on the country circuit once again. Katy debuted country at a new Sunset Strip nightclub in Los Angeles in mid-January and will also be seen in the film, "Hard Country," with Jan-Michael Vincent, Tanya Tucker and Michael Murphy, due out in early March.

Speaking of movies, "Any Which Way You Can" looks like it's going to outstrip box office grosses on its predecessor, "Every Which Way But Loose." The new Clint Eastwood flick has already brought in a whopping $44 million in receipts and it's only been out a month; insiders report it's running about $10 million ahead of "Every Which Way But Loose" for the same time period.

Jeanne C. Riley managed to proceed with her 11-day tour of Saudi Arabia despite a back injury she received in a fall at the Franklin, Tenn. farm. Riley suffered a hairline fracture of a vertebra but went ahead anyway with the scheduled overseas tour.

The guitar-swinging swimming pool formerly owned by Webb Pierce (who he operated as a tourist attraction on Nashville's Music Row) has been bought by Jack Spence. Spence owns the adjoining Spence Manor luxury hotel and says he purchased the pool more as a way of getting rid of the eyesore than anything else. He hopes to turn the site into something that "people on Music Row can be proud of."

When Dolly Parton's movie, "9 to 5," premiered in Manhattan, Parton was almost—but not quite—upstaged by guests David Bowie, Lilian Gish and TV producer Lorne Michaels. However, the parting show was taken by the "New York Times," which critiqued Dolly's fashion attire by sniping, "Miss Parton wears enough polyester to make a small parachute."

U.K. 'Daughter' Tie-Ins Planned

NASHVILLE—When the movie version of "Coal Miner's Daughter" opens in the United Kingdom in early spring, it will be backed with a marketing blitz similar to the one launched here by Universal Pictures and MCA Records.

Coordinating the promotion are Bernard Schwartz, producer of the autobiographical film based on singer Loretta Lynn's life, and David Skepner, Lynn's manager, who orchestrated the U.S. campaign last year.

The primary focal point of the recent London meetings called for tying in Loretta Lynn-related products, including MCA Records, Granada Books, Coal Miner's Music, Turn Consult Ltd. (which distributes Lynn's line of western clothing in the U.K.), Compton Advertising of London, and Kenny Denton-Taylor Made Music.

The meetings were hosted by Pano Alafouzo, president of C.I.C. Distribution, which is handling the film's U.K. release, and Gerry Lewis, director of international advertising and publicity for Universal/C.I.C. So far, "Coal Miner's Daughter" has grossed more than $80 million in American movie theatres.
